Seeks Tighter Reins On CIA

Enquirer Bureau Special

WASHINGTON—Sen. Stephen M. Young introduced a bill to place the Central Intelligence Agency under stricter Congressional supervision.

Senator Young declared the CIA spends "more than double the amount spent by the entire State Department," and that it was lacking effective Congressional scrutiny.

He urged the creation of a formal committee of six senators and six representatives, with a permanent staff, to make "a continuing study and investigation" of the agency.

"Wrapped in its cloak of secrecy, the CIA has, in effect, been making foreign policy," he contended, adding that "while I realize that officials of the CIA cannot announce their triumphs, the record of their serious mistakes or misjudgements is impressive."

He said the informal committee, which now is composed of the chairman and ranking minority member of the Senate committees on appropriations, armed services and foreign relations, and of the comparable House committees, should be placed by a Democrat and a Republican appointed from each of the committees by the Vice President and Speaker of the House.
